History

Toketti di Pane Carasau Rosmarino are a twist on our classic bite-sized snacks, Toketti. They are made from the famous Sardinian flatbread that dates back centuries and sprinkled with rosemary. Sardegna, an island in the middle of the Mediterranean with over 1100 miles of unspoiled coastline and a multitude of sheep, is a unique place with a rich culinary history and traditions. Shepherds who followed their flocks needed sturdy, shelf-stable bread, thus the famous Pane Carasau was born. A flat and crunchy cracker-like bread, it is still made today in the very same tradition by women who have passed down the recipe through the generations. The bread is cut into squares and lightly fried, then sprinkled with salt and rosemary. Our producer, Gabriele, sold Sardinian products for many years, and could never get enough Pane Carasau, so he decided to start making his own.

Handling

Store in a cool, dry place.
